3 Reasons Why It's So Hard For Teens To Learn About Money

1. Schools don't teach it.

Neither do high schools, colleges or even business schools for that matter. And when schools do attempt to teach personal finance, they do it in a way that most students find mind-numbingly boring.

2. Parents don't talk about it.

Most parents haven't had formal training in this subject. They learnt the hard way, through trial and error and by making expensive mistakes. And when parents do attempt to teach their kids about money, they are guilty of doing it in ways that teens find mind-numbingly boring. (See the pattern here?) In addition most parents also pass along their own money biases to their kids, that at best don't serve their kids, and at worst are actively detrimental.

3. It's an unconscious incompetence

Teens don't know that they don't know about money. Mainly because of the first two reasons mentioned above, most teens are clueless about the need to learn about how money works. They have no idea how critical this skill is for their future success and wellbeing. They are so focused on getting good grades so that they can get into good colleges, so that they can get a good jobs that pay well. They are clueless though, about how to manage that paycheck intelligently.

They don't realize that they will be tested on this skill everyday of their adult lives, from graduation to retirement.

3 Useful Things To Recognize

1. That the steps and action you take today will dramatically affect your teens financial future.

2. The earlier you start, the better it will be for them.

3. Contrary to popular belief, it not boring or difficult, it doesn't take years to learn and you begin to see results almost immediately.

Research shows that students who take a course in financial education are more likely to save, less likely to be compulsive buyers and less likely to max out their credit cards.

Research also shows that just 10 hours of a financial education program can significantly affect a students spending and saving habits.

Our Methodology

1. Recognize

We need to ensure that as educators or parents, we recognize this gap in their knowledge and the bias in their thinking. This goes a long way in understanding and empathizing with their initial lack of interest or initiative in learning about the topic of money.

2. Reason

We take the time to explain why this skill is so critical for their future success and wellbeing and why it's imperative they learn it now. When students know why they have to learn something and how they will benefit, they are much more motivated to learn. Self interest kicks in and they try harder, and keep at it longer.

3. Relate

We take time to build a relationship with them. Students, irrespective of their age, don't have a favorite subject, they have a favorite teacher. If they love the teacher, they love the subject and unfortunately the reverse is true as well. We also make the content relevant to their lives now.

4. Raise

We don't just focus on financial knowledge but also on financial behavior and mindset, which are arguably as important. The confluence of these three aspects- knowledge, behavior and mindset — underpins a truly effective program.relevant to their lives now.

5. Reflect

Student reflection an integral part of the learning experience and unfortunately is too often left out of the equation. We are intentional about including it. We know this is crucial for students to be able to develop insights and to be able to think critically about the subject.

5 Step Blueprint for Financial Empowerment

Financial Empowerment For Teens & Young Adults

Level 1

Smart Money Management

Money Management is a critical life skill, yet isn't taught in any school. This specially crafted online program will change and challenge the way students think about money.

We not only work on their financial knowledge but also on their financial behavior and attitudes, which arguably play a much more important role in getting them to handle money smartly and responsibly.

The dynamic and engaging sessions and personal familiarity of the live coaching classes not only help students learn faster and remember better but also motivates them to engage in deep learning that builds their financial awareness.

Entrepreneurship With A Twist

This program shows teens the key aspects of what skills being an entrepreneur demands and how they can hone them.

Teaching entrepreneurship to teens is fantastic but we need to do it right and not gloss over the hard bits. We need to show them how to develop an entrepreneurial mindset – to problem solve, to make mistakes, to want to give back and be part of something bigger. Only then can they grasp its true meaning.

This module has been specially curated based on the skills they will need to develop like critical thinking, self-directed learning, self-awareness, problem solving and communication, among others.

3 Most Common Concerns

1. Cost: This is initially a concern for parents. However, once they begin to understand the ROI each level of the program affords, this quickly becomes a non-issue. By the end of the level 1, the students themselves calculate an average ROI of over 1000%. Yes, you read that right!

2. Time: Parents worry that this will be very time consuming. We understand the academic priorities students have and so have designed this program so that it fits into their school/ university schedule. Each level is tailored so that it's compact and delivered in the shortest time, yet has maximum impact and effectiveness, thanks to the delivery style and resources we use.

3. Lack Of Engagement: Parents also fear that their teens won't engage and/ or enjoy the program. We have a 95% success rate with all our students and thus schedule a call with the prospective student to ensure that the program is a right fit for him/her. We use our 5 Step Blueprint to ensure that students are not only empowered as a result of the program, but that they also thoroughly enjoy the learning journey.

To further reduce parental doubt, we offer:

A Risk Free Guarantee: If after attending the first session, the student decides this isn't right for him/ her, just email us at info@kfi.global. We will cancel the enrollment and refund the fee in full, no questions asked.

3 Reasons To Work With Us

1. Holistic Approach:

Our programs focus not just on knowledge but on behavior and mindset too, which are crucial for actual change.

2. World Class Learning Experience:

The content and delivery of our programs are very highly rated by both parents and students.

3. Unbeatable ROI:

Our programs empower students to make better decisions. The ROI of this over the course of their lifetime is incalculable.

Student Testimonials

I thoroughly enjoyed every session and feel much more confident about my ability to tackle money issues as an adult. I also know that investing early is the right way to grow my wealth.

Caitlin C. 20 yrs

Because of what I learned here I will use compound interest to its fullest by earning it, not paying it. I will pay off my credit card in full every month as well as ensure that I have an emergency fund whilst trying to live below my means.

Ben S. 17yrs

The program was engaging, enlightening and intriguing. I loved every minute of it. Because of this program I feel much more confident about making wise financial decisions.

Diya P. 20yrs

I really loved the program, I found it very interesting & insightful. I particularly loved the investing module and the way everything was explained so simply and clearly. More than anything this program helped me see the power of discipline and patience, in money and in every other aspect of life.

Tracy G. 21yrs

I loved every program I took at KFI, they taught me things that aren't taught in school yet are critical for us to know. I actually use what I learned and feel financially empowered. I highly recommend these fantastic programs!

Mostafa M. 17 yrs

Before taking this program, I spent mindlessly and knew nothing of even the basics, cause we don't learn any of this in school. This program taught me so much and completely changed the way I think and behave with money.

Jessica R. 15yrs

I thoroughly enjoyed learning about money through this fabulous program. It was fun and interactive and very interesting. I definitely felt smarter after every session of the program, I highly recommend it!

Laura R. 13yrs

This program has changed the way I think about money. I loved how concepts were explained so simply and clearly. The topics on investing were my favorite, especially the difference between investing and speculating.

Deven K. 15yrs

Being a part of generation wealth means I'm confident from what I've learned these past four weeks with KFI and I will be braver when taking on money related decisions in the future. I want to financially secure my future and this knowledge will help me do so.

Sanjith S. 17yrs

Before this program, I was very stressed about the money concerns I would have faced once I turned 18. This program taught me every detail of what to expect. I think every young adult would benefit from this program.

Pocketful of Dirhams: How to make your children financially savvy

Teaching your children to be financially savvy

Educating children about how to manage money is vital for their future. But with lessons in literacy sometimes on the more basic side, it falls to parents to pass on those early messages of effective financial behaviour.

A 2019 study by Visa found that 70% of parents are not confident in their own financial literacy skills. This is a significant gap, as financial literacy is a key skill for success in the 21st century.

How personal finance education for children is gaining traction in the UAE

Teaching financial literacy to a young age is an important investment for children's future, says an expert.

There has been a significant increase in enrolments since the onset of the pandemic, as parents seek to instil financial literacy in their children. This is a positive trend, as financial literacy is a key skill for success in the 21st century.

THE AGENDA
Podcast

The Agenda - Financial Literacy 18.01.2017

How do kids respond to learning about finance?

Kids love learning about money. It gives them a sense of control and builds up their self-confidence because everything they learn about, they can see and put into practice in real life. They feel more competent in that particular area and that is possibly one of the nicest things to see in kids when they have that self-confidence and belief in how money works.

What about parents who don't necessarily feel qualified to educate their kids about money?

The one thing that parents can do is to start a conversation with their kids about money. Not many parents are confident in their own financial literacy skills, but it is important to start the conversation.

Marilyn Pinto, founder and managing director, Kids Finance Initiative, says the programme has seen an uptick in the number of enrolments since the onset of Covid-19. Laslie Fabbro / The National
